Prada shoes, $1,100

In 2012, Miuccia Prada debuted fiery sandals and stilettos with cartoon-like flames that appeared to grow in the wearer's wake. They caught on like, well, wildfire—and demand, it seems, has yet to simmer down: At Prada's latest show, out stepped a whole new slew of fire shoes, including these lustrous caution-cone orange wedges in patent leather. Get them while they're hot.

HIGHLIGHT AND CONTOUR

Clash a vixenish dress in fluorescent lime with outdoorsy carabiner-centered accessories for an outfit that's perfectly unexpected. Prada dress ($2,980) and badge holder; select Prada stores. Balenciaga necklace.

PRADA NYLON

The Vela, a sleek, utilitarian backpack crafted from durable, water-resistant Pocono nylon, became an instant hit when Miuccia Prada introduced it in 1984. More than three decades later, the military-grade material still feels inherently modern—futuristic, in fact, as evidenced by Prada's fall collection. Her sporty sci-fi lineup included an assortment of nylon looks—think corsets, skirts, and padded coats—many featuring the original triangle plate logo. Prada's clothes came across as strong, practical, and daring—just like her fans. »

And with the end comes new life, a fresh beginning—and a vibrant array of caps, capes, and cagoules.

SHOE

There was a futuristic slant to Prada's fall show, which opened with a drone hovering above the crowd and featured a revamped version of longtime Miuccia signatures like technical fabrics and athletic gear. The message: Things are moving fast. Best to have a safety-orange drawstring to secure your stilettos. Leather sandal, Prada, at select Prada boutiques nationwide.

WE'RE NOT GETTING ANY SLEEP TONIGHT

In the late 90s, Prada Linea Rossa paved the way for fashion's sportswear obsession, pioneered high-tech luxury, and dominated the UK garage scene. Fast forward to the here and now and the Italian luxury house is resurrecting its cult, futurist sports line to dress nightlife tribes once more.

Como una improbable exposición en la que las pinturas de caballos de George Stubbs compartieran sala con las instalaciones luminiscentes de Dan Flavin, el estilo amazónico de Hermès coexiste con la enérgica fiesta de Prada y da lugar a uno de los fenómenos más insólitos de la moda: la convivencia de tendencias antagónicas.

She's known for her flamboyant sense of style. And Rita Ora garnered lots of attention for her vibrant attire as she enjoyed a low-key night out in New York on Thursday. The pop star, 27, had all eyes on her as she donned a £225 canary yellow Prada bucket hat, teamed with a vibrant hot pink blouse. Rita paired her eccentric attire with toned-down black slacks, while box-fresh monochrome sneakers polished off the look. Rita flaunted her flawless complexion with nude make-up, but had concealed her eyes with retro-inspired angular shades.

Charlize Theron shows off low-key eye for style as she rocks flowing black tank and track pants

By DAILYMAIL.COM REPORTER PUBLISHED: 02:36 BST, 3 August 2018

She's one of the most glamorous stars to grace the silver screen. But on Thursday Charlize Theron kept her wardrobe decidedly low-key for a shopping trip in West Hollywood. The 42-year-old Atomic Blonde star opted for a long black tank on top which showed off her toned arms and was emblazoned with embroidered black stars. She also wore dark track pants with white stripes down the side and a blue baseball cap.

Natural beauty! While her famous blonde tresses were hidden under her hat, the mother-of-two appeared to be mostly make-up free save for a dash of nude lipstick

Amandla Stenberg and girlfriend King Princess hold hands as they head to the VMAs as a couple

By DAILYMAIL.COM REPORTER PUBLISHED: 05:40 BST, 21 August 2018

They posed separately on the MTV Video Music Awards red carpet Sunday. But celeb couple Amandla Stenberg and King Princess walked side by side and hand in hand when they headed out that day to go to the event. Amandla, 19, modeled a tan leather mini-skirt and a pair of silvery ankle-strap heels, slipping into a turtlenecked floral top.

Her blouse offered a splash of color, with yellow orange and white floral designs swirling over a black background. She accented her features with makeup including pink eye-shadow, and she carried along a crepe pink clutch as she made her way to Radio City Music Hall.

Jasmine Trinca was attending Venice Film Festival to promote her latest film, 'Sulla Mia Pelle (On My Skin)' today (August 29) in Venice, Italy, and she opted to make it a Prada double.

Photocall: Miuccia Prada decided to dip into her extensive archives for the Resort 2019 collection and celebrate some of her most legendary looks. The rever collar shirt made its debut in the Spring 2012 collection which was themed by rockabilly fashion and Americana. This updated version arrives in shell – a Prada signature – and is licked at the hem with furious flames consuming a black and white dahlia flower print. This isn't about recycling, but revelling in iconography and she fabulously nailed the look.

Screening: I was less enthused by Jasmine's second offering. This look steps back one year further into the archives of the Spring 2011 collection. Everyone from celebs to fashion editors and influencers couldn't get enough of the Prada banana print. Even I have one of the skirts, which I'm excited to dig out of the back of my wardrobe and wear again. But the problem I have with this look is the top half. The fit is way off, and the unnecessary belt isn't helping.
