When I was 11, my parents gave me an iPhone. I think it shaped who I am as a person because I had access to everything very, very early on. But now I'm 18 and I have gotten rid of it. I was worried about the mental-health effects it was having on me. The phone was taking over my life. I felt like I was floating away, and part of that had to do with being in a virtual world without any tangible substance. I felt like I was always refreshing Instagram instead of refreshing my life.

Comprendre : un mélange néobohème fait de collisions florales, animales et chromatiques où l'on peut piocher chaises de tables, paravent imprimé ananas, coussins brodés en velours et jacquards lumineux mais aussi papiers peints en soie ou vinyle, bougies parfumées et service de table en porcelaine réalisé par la manufacture florentine Richard-Ginori, pour des dîners qui ne manqueront pas de charme. — PIERRE GROPPD

Michelle Pfeiffer In Prada – ‘Murder On The Orient Express’ World Premiere

Michelle Pfeiffer attended the world premiere of ‘Murder On The Orient Express’ on Thursday (November 2) in London, England.

Forget golden goddess, Michelle was an elegant, silver seductress in this Prada gown that showed the effortless side of Prada that gets it so right for the red carpet.

The dress needed no embellishment, as the shimmery hue, bold shoulders, and draped sleeves took top billing.
