The joy of socks

Put spring in your step with attention-grabbing hosiery. Photograph by Letty Schmitterlow

Can we talk about the transformative power of socks? Not that we'd ever discourage you from investing in another pair of shoes, but add a pair of plain, neon or patterned pop socks to your favourite kitten heels and they're as good as new – look to Miu Miu and Missoni for inspiration. Hockey-style knee-high socks (seen at Prada) will put a new spin on exuberant party shoes. Splash out on Fendi's high-impact tartan versions – or opt for Tabio's sheer, striped ankle socks, which cost about the same as an exorbitant green juice. JH

Suits you! Rita Ora slips into THREE chic workwear-inspired looks as she hops between TV appearances in New York City

By Julia Pritchard for MailOnline PUBLISHED: 16:11 GMT, 1 February 2018

She never fails to look glamorous, whether on the red carpet or stepping out to run errands. And Rita Ora maintained her stylish reputation on Thursday, as she slipped into three chic suits for consecutive TV appearances in New York. The singer first turned heads in an edgy leather co-ord as she left the Today Show, before changing into both a sleek grey suit and vintage checked ensemble during her time on Live with Kelly and Ryan.

Good things come in threes: Not stopping there however, the singer changed into a third look as she departed the show only hours later

Check in with Rita's Prada skirt

Prada Fall '18 Menswear View more from the collection here

And here she goes again! Rita Ora dons another change of clothes, now clad in a checked two-piece getup by Prada. Not yet available to us mere mortals it appears Rita is wearing some samples from the Italian fashion house, in keeping with her high fashion full look policy she's been adhering to whilst promoting her new 50 Shades of Grey single with Liam Payne.

Checks are big news in fashion right now. From Off-White's much lusted after skirts and thigh high boots to Balenciaga's asymmetric blazers... if it's not tartan, it's not cool.

Buy into Rita's look with our selection of alternatives below. Do Parisian-chic with Isabel Marant's ruffled checked skirt. To be worn with a fitted black roll neck, baker boy hat and leather jacket. Or how about injecting a bit of a royal feel into your everyday look? Burberry's silk lined tartan number with look super countrified paired with suede knee highs and a cashmere sweater.

For something a bit more modern, don't miss Zara's checked skirt. Wear to the office with a crisp white shirt and brogues and then dress it up by night with a lace trimmed cami and heels.

Prada is Back: Here's Why This Is the Brand You Should Be Wearing

From nada to Prada.

By Tora Northman/Jan 30, 2018/Fashion
2.407 Hypes

The past year has been all about resurrecting old trends. From Burberry's iconic Nova Check and Louis Vuitton's monogram pattern going from tacky to must-have fashion, to Vetements collaborating with Juicy Couture – anything is possible. There's no doubt that we're seeing a blast from the past in the fashion industry right now, and we're embracing it to the fullest.

The next label on the come up is Italian fashion house Prada. Founded in 1913 by Mario Prada, his eponymous label has grown into one of the most notable luxury brands in the industry. Fronted by his granddaughter Miuccia Prada, the fashion house has remained a constant throughout the years with its notable handbags and elegant collections, but hasn't seen much of a peak in the past couple of years. That is, until the brand's Fall/Winter 2018 collection paraded down the runway in Milan. The models sported pieces with a modern athleisure influence, with an overarching aesthetic that you could describe as a futuristic take on minimalism. The collection also brought back Prada's iconic nylon material in the form of bags, hats and apparel, as well as the label's retro logo front and centre – making the collection an ode to the fashion house's modern elegance and its influence in early '90s.

INSTAGRAM/@PRADA

Not only did the fashion show put Prada in a different light, the brand also debuted its Cloudbust sneaker a few days earlier, which had the fashion community divided. With the “ugly” sneaker trend being at its peak, the Italian fashion house saw an opportunity and embraced it with open arms. The new quirky, almost child-like silhouette has turned into a must-have for high fashion connoisseurs and streetwear enthusiasts alike, and one could easily compare it to the hype surrounding the coveted Balenciaga Triple-S sneaker.

The cloud-like silhouette from which the shoe got its name is striking and bold, and is the perfect statement piece to put Prada back on the map. The retro-futuristic aesthetic that the brand has adapted not only highlights the house itself, it has also proven that Prada isn't just for “luxury loving women.” With cute bucket hats and chunky outerwear, the collection caters to a new, streetwearcentric audience that the house hasn't targeted before, allowing for a whole new culture to be born.

FEE-GLORIA GROENEMEYER/@FEEGLORY

If you're still not convinced Prada is the brand to wear, take a scroll through Instagram. The brand is on the rise and can be seen everywhere – and if you want to get on the trend, the time is now. Gigi Hadid stepped out wearing head-to-toe Prada, sporting track pants, combat boots and a futuristic windbreaker, as well as an patterned tote bag with the brand's logo. A\$AP Rocky also wore the brand's recent collection in concert, completing the look with the Clodbust sneakers and a bright red nylon bum bag – it is only a matter of time before the trend blows up.

The resurgence of Prada is now, so dig up your old nylon bags and wear them with pride. If you're looking to hop on the trend, the Prada Clodbust sneakers are available in select sizes over at MATCHESFASHION, and have a look at platforms like eBay and Grailed if you're trying to cop an old school Prada bag.

The Hadids Present a Unified Front with New Spring 2018 Bags from Prada

And our most serious Hermès devotees present a small parade of Birkins

Sometimes you have to stare blankly at pictures of celebs for weeks before bag trends start to emerge, but this week, both Gigi Hadid and Bella Hadid carried two different styles from Prada's Spring 2018 collection, which makes my job sublimely simple. Dakota Johnson In Prada – ‘Fifty Shades Freed’ Paris Premiere

Rita Ora and Dakota Johnson were in sync with their white red carpet looks for the Paris premiere of ‘Fifty Shades Freed’ this evening (February 6) in France, where she was joined by her Tod’s-clad co-star Jamie Dornan.

Opting not to rely on the frou-frou details and fussy construction, the actress proved that a simple Prada dress can still look modern too.

There was a high-octane quality thanks to the shimmery sequins that ensured all eyes were set on Dakota, but she is so beautiful, it would’ve been the case anyway.

Tiffany & Co. jewels and Gianvito Rossi ‘Portofino’ silver sandals completed the look.

Margot Robbie In Prada – Santa Barbara International Film Festival

Margot Robbie attended the Santa Barbara International Film Festival on Thursday (February 8) and received the Outstanding Performers of the Year Award along with her 'I, Tonya' costar Allison Janney.

The actress has been on a fashion high rotating from charmingly sweet styles to sexy silhouettes.

Her Prada separates channel the former mood with their pastel brocade fabric and the bow detail.

This is a look that I could have seen on Elle or Dakota Fanning, but I think it still fits into her wheelhouse.

The tailoring and her soft-but-not-cutesy styling, give the outfit a pretty elegance without veering into saccharine territory.
